

Sad Companion

From the dawn I feel, her close to me
I would like her gone away and forget me
For whatever reason she invited herself in my everyday life
And then she became my sad companion

From my workplace, I'm just a witness
Nothing else matters, why all is a mess
I can't try anything,
I keep still she controls me I stay her prey
As a fever she wraps me without pain

She preserves me from sorrow She saves me from anger
She forbids me passion She deprives me of laughter (no one could understand please let me all alone)
She sentences me to darkness she feeds me of her nothingness

From my sofa the day is over
She still keeps watch on me one thing is sure
I try not anymore to blame or reject her cause she's all I have
The lack of her frightens me she's my sweet guard

But sooner or later she will lose her grip
To fade out in a smile or die in a gaze
To let me less empty then I could feel life flowing in my body
My late partner will sink in desire
